General Comment

To whom it may concern,

I am a year old male who has spent hundreds of hours and a significant amount of money learning details about trading options and writing covered calls. Since most of my net worth is in my IRA I am extremely concerned to find out the government is considering changing the rules and may no longer allow an educated American write covered calls and use options as position protection in my IRA. I strongly oppose eliminating the ability to trade low risk options in my IRA. The government does not know what is best for me and my family and I am extremely offended that some law maker in Washington feels that eliminating option trading in an IRA is in my best interest.
